Lunch - Vietnamese sandwich made with meat and vegetables inside a baguette

Banh Mi, which has recently been introduced in Korea, is a Vietnamese sandwich made by splitting a baguette in half and adding various ingredients such as meat and vegetables. It is believed to have originated under French influence during the French colonial period, and is now one of the foods as familiar to Vietnamese people as pho.

DAY1

Hanoi

Hoa Lo Prison Camp - The camp was called Hanoi Hilton by American soldiers.

It was created by the French government, which ruled Indochina in the 19th century, for the purpose of suppressing Vietnamese independence figures. Nowadays, it is a replica of the camp at the time, and you can see their lives. Various instruments of torture and execution used to oppress Vietnamese independence activists, and life in the camp are on display. At one time, it housed over 2,000 prisoners, and the interior of the prison was vividly recreated to create an eerie atmosphere. Also, this place was called Hanoi Hilton by imprisoned American soldiers. This is not to say that it was really as good as a hotel, but it was called a slang term using irony, and the name of this place became known all over the world.

Guide meeting

Ethnic Minority Museum

Opened in November 1997, this museum focuses on the life, culture, and history of Vietnam's 54 ethnic minorities. This is a place where descriptions of Vietnam's various ethnic groups and their traditional culture are displayed. Divided into 9 exhibition halls, you can see about 15,000 items of clothing, tableware, household tools, and agricultural tools used by ethnic minorities.

Transfer from Hanoi to Ninh Binh (approx. 2 hours)

Ninh Binh

Lunch - Local food, goat bulgogi herb set meal

Dishes made with goat meat are not as common in Korea as chicken or pork. But isn't it another gift of traveling to be able to taste dishes that are different from what you usually eat? Get out of the comfort zone and try something new.

Ninh Binh Boat Tour - Ninh Binh where you can feel the Hollywood scale!

There are many places where you can take a boat tour, but there are not many places where you can feel the unique scale of Ninh Binh. Here you can take a boat ride and enjoy the spectacular scenery along the river. Feel the enormous scale of the Hollywood movie Kong Skull Island filming location. Especially after passing through a narrow cave under a huge rock mountain, the scenery that unfolds before your eyes makes you feel like you are entering another hidden world.

Dinner - Local food

Hoa Lu Temple - Temple dedicated to the ancient kings of Ninh Binh

★One drink per person provided at cafes around Hoa Lu Temple Ninh Binh

Ninh Binh Hoa Lu was the first capital of Vietnam's feudal dynasty in the 10th century. It was the capital for the first 12 years of the Dinh Dynasty from 968 to 1009, and the capital of the Le Dynasty for the next 29 years. After the capital was moved to Thang Long, many of Hoa Lu's cultural assets were damaged, and now two temples remain in their original form on the site of the ancient royal palace. These temples are Dinh Kinh Temple, dedicated to King Dinh, and Linkin Temple, dedicated to King Le. Every year on the 10th day of the third lunar month, pilgrims visiting Hoa Lu hold a ceremony to honor the two kings.

Vietnam was a French colony from 1884 until the Paris Armistice in January 1973, and at that time, the Hoa Lu region served as a spiritual pillar as a hometown that promoted the national spirit and spirit of independence. Currently, many tourists are visiting the area as it is famous for its well-preserved nature.

Hanoi, Halong Bay

Hoan Kiem Old Town (36th Street), Oksan Pagoda, Central Luxury Rooftop Food Truck

Breakfast - Hotel style

Guide meeting - Please gather all your belongings and gather in the first floor lobby.
(Planned to change accommodation to Halong Bay Hotel)

Hoan Kiem Old Town (36 streets) - A tourist street in Hanoi, also known as 36 Streets.

Hoan Kiem Old Town, where Hanoi travelers gather, is also called the 36 Streets, which originates from the fact that merchant organizations have designated 36 areas to sell their products since ancient times. Every time you enter a new street, the products the merchants sell and the atmosphere change. As it is called a traveler's street, there are hidden restaurants, cozy cafes, and pubs, and one of the charms of the old town is that the atmosphere is clearly different during the day and at night.

Oksansa Temple - shrine in the middle of the lake

It is located on the north side of Hoan Kiem Lake, which is elongated from north to south. This is a space dedicated to Tran Hung Dao, a 13th-century Vietnamese war hero who defeated the Mongol invasion, as well as three saints: Wen, Mu, and Ui. To get to the island where the shrine is located, you must cross a stunning red wooden bridge called The Huc. It is known as a place to relax and relax surrounded by lakes and trees, so it is visited by many local citizens and tourists. Inside the building, there is a giant stuffed turtle over 2 meters long that was caught in Hoan Kiem Lake in 1968.

● Dragon jewel - Kiss Rocks, Titop Island

Kiss Rocks - A unique rock with a kissing appearance in the sea of Halong Bay

Halong Bay is lined with about 2,000 interestingly shaped rocks. The most famous of these is the Kissing Rock, which looks like two rocks are kissing. If you go back to the other side, it is also called Fish Rock because it resembles a fish. Another fun part of traveling to Halong Bay is looking at the different shapes of rocks and naming what they resemble.

Titop Island - Halong Bay, 'Ti Top Island' even Russian astronauts fell in love with Ti Top Island, one of about 3,000 rocky islands floating on the emerald waters of Halong Bay, is named after Russian cosmonaut German Sergei Titov. Titop was the second person to fly into space aboard Vostok 2 and became a hero of the former Soviet Union. Ho Chi Minh named this beautiful island 'Ti Top' out of friendship with the Soviet Union.
