GARRISON HISTORY

Daegu is known as the Apple Capitol of Korea and is one of the largest cities in Korea with a population of 2.5 million people. It is located 200 miles southwest of Seoul and is 107 miles northwest of Busan in the Nakdong river area. Daegu is surrounded by a wall of steep hills and is known to have the hottest and coldest climates in South Korea.

Daegu first appeared in historic records in 366 AD. In 757 AD the city was granted its present name which means "Great Hill." The native Daegu population is conservative in nature and keeps a firm hold on old Korean customs and traditions. USAG Daegu begins south of Daejeon and continues south to Pusan and the southernmost tip of the peninsula.

USAG Daegu is commanded in peacetime by the IMCOM-Korea, located in Daegu. USAG Daegu residents represent a full profile of the United States Forces in Korea. They include Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, DoD Civilians, and invited contractors.
